

UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME

HISTORY DEPARTMENT &
MEDIÉVAL INSTITUTE present

Caroline Walker Bynum

PROFESSOR OF THE WESTERN EUROPEAN MIDDLE AGES, INSTITUTE FOR ADVANCED STUDY, PRINCETON, NJ

*“Long and Short Perspectives:
A Twenty-first Century Historian
Looks at Medieval Women and Religion”*

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 13, 2011, 5:00 P.M.

CAREY AUDITORIUM, 107 HESBURGH LIBRARY

A short reception in the Medieval Institute will follow the lecture.*

Caroline Walker Bynum, Professor of the Western European Middle Ages, Institute for Advanced Study (Princeton, NJ), studies the religious ideas and practices of the European Middle Ages from late antiquity to the sixteenth century. Bynum is currently working on the role of objects in late medieval religion, placing them in the context of contemporary theories of miracles and materiality.

